

White gold chemical makeup

I'm interested in getting a piece made in 14k white gold for use as jewelry, however I can't find the elemental makeup of your white gold anywhere on your site. Nickel allergies are quite common and I would like to be sure there is no Nickel in the alloy that you use.

Also, fixing broken image links and updating the sparse information on your materials pages would be a really good idea.

I am also very interested in this topic for the very same reasons. Before ordering jewelry it is very important for me to know from which elements the white gold you offer is composed. I am looking forward to your answer.
