Hi everyone, My name is Aaron, and I am a 3D artist.

I recently created the forum called: <http://www.3dprinting-forums.com>

I created this forum to consolidate and share knowledge about 3D printing, design and best practices. Hopefully this community will grow and become something useful. I really believe 3D printing will become some thing really big.

Please help contribute and share the information you know to help others in the art of 3D printing.

I have also added some simple 3D tutorials, and will be adding more.

If you need any 3D help, please feel free to post and i'll try my best to answer. Thanks very much every one :)

That is Wonderful Aaron!

Its great to have you on board with Kraftwurx.com. Please feel free to post tutorials, and resources on the KW forums too! We will participate in your forums as well. We would love for our communities to help grow each other's. Together we can make a big impact in 3d printing education.

I checked your 3d printing forum. It's good to have a community where we can share our thoughts and idea. Recently, I join a news website <https://www.allthat3d.com/> and found good information in it. I suggest all of the members to visit this website at least once and share your thoughts about it.
