

Pictures are Worth a Thousand Dollars

Posted by Marco CM - 2013/04/09 11:53

They say pictures are worth a thousand words. They could also be worth thousands of dollars in sales. 3d printed products can be tricky to sale and using unrealistic 3d renders of a model does not help much either. The best way to present your products on Kraftwurx's store front is with actual real-life photographs of the product. This not only give you time to test your designs for fragility but it photos provide potential customers confidence they are purchasing a real-life, quality 3d printed product. Not something that will appear completely different once it arrives. Kraftwurx does not require you to purchase a 3d print of your product before allowing you to sell it in the online store. However is highly recommended you do so in order to photograph your parts and promote sales with quality imagery. With this in mind take a look at sample product images below.

http://kraftwurx.com/images/fbfiles/images/70_716.jpg

http://www.kraftwurx.com/3d-printed-quality-products?page=shop.product_details&flypage=flypage_aaron.tpl&product_id=716&category_id=63

=====