

heello! From shapeways looking for other sites

Posted by Silverbeam - 2012/02/04 01:21

hey guys! I do a lot of 3D printing and so far almost all of it has been through shapeways. While they have good prices, that's about all that's good about them. Kraftwurx looks like it may have similar prices. Anyone here used both sites and can give a review?

=====

Re:heello! From shapeways looking for other sites

Posted by SarahStorm - 2012/02/04 03:09

Hello,

I've ordered both a model I made and a model from an artist here on KW, "violet twist case" np. Last year I bought two things off SW and my order was delayed then I received somebody else's order. After that I just asked for a refund. SW was my first place to try this, but KW got me my first 3d print... so I'll probly stick with them.

=====

Re:heello! From shapeways looking for other sites

Posted by Silverbeam - 2012/02/04 13:19

gah, yeah delays are horrible and I have gotten other peoples parts many times, with missing parts of my own.

I wonder how much is shipping here....

=====

Re:heello! From shapeways looking for other sites

Posted by Marco CM - 2012/02/09 11:46

We produce the products closes to the customer. This usually dramatically reducing shipping costs.

Small/medium size items shipped within the US usually don't exceed $8 UPS Ground. My recent order was $6.23 UPS Ground.

To receive accurate shipping calculation. It must be based on order weight. You can see the shipping costs for a specific item by adding to your cart and proceeding to checkout. You will see shipping options and costs before choosing to make a purchase.

Does this help answer your question Silverbeam?

=====