

Thinking of posting in seller section

Posted by nateowens - 2012/08/12 11:16

---

Long-time illustrator doing art for agencies, magazines, publishers and clients for 40+ years (ArtPixel Studios)

I have used 3D in my illustrations for years, and have done a few prints using the ZCorp process, having molds made from those and cast into resin with a bronze patina.

Thinking of posting something here in the seller section to see how it goes

https://lh6.googleusercontent.com/-Au2JRM-pyp0/UBEr8Kr2L5I/AAAAAAAAABd8/OKtoUQg\_Ahs/s596/BadBillyB.jpghttp://a7.sphotos.ak.fbcdn.net/hphotos-ak-ash4/287863\_10151013300533431\_1627445067\_o.jpg

=====

Re:Thinking of posting in seller section

Posted by nateowens - 2012/08/12 11:33

---

How do you get "karma"?

=====

Re:Thinking of posting in seller section

Posted by Marco CM - 2012/08/13 15:55

---

Hello Nate. Kraftwurx is glad to host your artwork for sale. I am personally a big fan. We 3d print in zcorp (Multi-Color Sandstone) and many other materials ideal for casting/mold making as well. Once you upload a product to the site with description etc. It is up to you to spread the word etc.

When orders come in. We 3d print,pack, & ship them directly to the customer. Unless you would like to have them sent to you first for any special post processing. Adding lights, painting etc. Feel free to ask more questions here on the forums. Welcome to Kraftwurx.com

=====

Re:Thinking of posting in seller section

Posted by Marco CM - 2012/08/13 15:58

---

nateowens wrote:

How do you get "karma"?

Karma is acquired by activity on the Kraftwurx.com site. Especially forum activity. The more you post, comment, upload and publish. The more Karma you gain. This helps other members get an idea of who are the more experienced site users.

=====